History: Milan was first inhabited as a permanent settlement during the 7th century BC. The first settlers in the history of Milan were Celtic tribes who established a community near the river Po. These Celtic tribes remained in Milan for approximately five hundred years until they were overtaken by the Romans who developed a new chapter in the history of Milan. The Roman army invaded and overran the Celtic settlements near Milan in the 2nd century BC and renamed it ‘Mediolanum’. This Latin word is where modern day Milan derives its name from and means in the middle of the plain. It was chosen to describe the geographical location of Milan. As the Roman Empire expanded northwards into Western Europe, the future of Milan was assured as an important trade route between Rome in the south and the Roman territories in France, Germany and England. In the 4th Century AD, Milan became the capital of the Western Roman Empire; however, this was a short lived glory as the Western Roman Empire was already being eclipsed by the Byzantines and it was only a matter of time before the Western Roman Empire diminished greatly in importance. The history of Milan during the middle ages was consumed to a large degree with wars fought against rival cities in Italy. Italy used to be ruled as dozens of separate city states up until the 19th century and Milan was one such independent state. Around the same time, the Lombardo League was created as an alliance of city states in the north of Italy to rival those cities under the control of Emperor Frederick I. Although the renaissance is thought of as a time of development and achievement in the fields of art and architecture, Milan underwent severe turmoil in the 16th century which was repeated twice in the 18th century. In 1535 Spanish military forces invaded and occupied Milan and in the 18th century Milan fell under the control of the Austrian Empire and Napoleon at different times. Today, Milan is one of the premier cities in Italy today and although it’s not the government capital of Italy, it is the financial heart of the country. Most of the big Italian banks and multinational corporations have their headquarters in Milan. Milan has a population of roughly 1.5 million people and is situated in the affluent Lombardi region of northern Italy. Milan is a popular shopping destination and also has several world class art museums around the city.

The Conference Banquet will be held on January 10th 2013 @ Una Hotel Scandinavia,

Hotel: Una Hotel Scandinavia
Address: Via Giovanni Battista Fauchè, 15, 20154 Milan
Ph.: +39 02 336391
Time: 20:00-23:00
Weather
The climate in Milan is typically Mediterranean, with high temperatures and sunny days in the summer and colder, damper weather in the winter. July and August are usually very hot and temperatures tend to stay around 30°C for much of this time. Milan's low seasons tend to fall between April to June and September to October.

Time
Italy is in the Central European time zone (CET = GMT/UCT + 1).

Banks
Most Milan banks open between 08:30 to 13:30 and 14:45 to 15:45, Monday to Friday. The major branches often open for a couple of hours on Saturday mornings. Many of them are in the heart of the city and usually have ATMs outside that accept a wide network of cards and offer excellent wholesale exchange rates.

Post Office
Most post offices are open from 08:00 to 07:00, Monday to Friday, and from 08:00 to midday on Saturday. They are closed on public holidays.

Shopping
The majority of shops are open all day from 09:30 to 13:00 and 15:00 – 19:30 Monday to Saturday. Sundays and public holidays are the usual closing days, although there are some exceptions.

Electricity
In Italy electrical current is 220 volts/50Hz and the European round 2-pin plugs are standard. Americans and Canadians with 110V equipment will need a transformer which changes the voltage and an adapter to fit in Italian sockets. These can be bought at any hardware store. British, Australians and South Africans can use a plug adapter which most department stores stock.

Special Needs
Delegates and accompanying persons with disabilities are invited to advise the Congress Secretariat of any special requirements.
Pharmacy
A chemist or drugstore is known as a Farmacia and most of them tend to keep the same working hours as other shops. If your nearest drugstore is closed it will list other chemists open at lunchtimes, holidays or at night.

Currency
The unit of Italy currency is Euro (€). Major credit cards are accepted in most hotels, shops and restaurants. Travelers’ cheques and currency can be changed at exchange bureaus.
The Friars Minor Capuchin

The Friars Minor Capuchin, who belongs to a religious order which has been present in Lombardy since 1535, have won appreciation from the population for their work at the service of the people from day to day. In Milan in particular they have become something of an institution. The Friars, who are involved in charity and are also sensitive to expressions of beauty, have created a museum that presents predominantly religious works. The Order’s heritage is thus made available to all, reflecting the words of Friar Galdino in a famous quotation from author Alessandro Manzoni, “We are like the sea that receives influx from all around, and that distributes what it has received far and wide.” For this reason, admission to the museum is free of charge. Visitors who so wish can make a donation to support the Museum’s work.

Duomo cathedral museum

Duomo Museum is the museum of Milan’s Cathedral. The historical and artistic patrimony it houses does not stem from a private collection and therefore does not reflect choices linked to an individual, an environment, a cultural era or an artistic mode, but rather refers to the single monument that constitutes its origin: the Duomo. Hence, its only theme is this grand Cathedral, a concrete and complex reality started more than six hundred years ago, of which it relates and reveals the history and art, as well as the uninterrupted activity of the Fabbrica and the evolution of its task: from the construction of the cathedral to its preservation and restoration. The Museum is an exceptional tool for approaching the historical and artistic dimension of the Duomo and recounting the sequence of its construction stages, covering over six centuries of history of Milan, the city to which it is inextricably linked.

Address: Downtown
Opening hours: Cathedral - Every day: 07:00 – 19:00 (Last admission at 6:45 p.m.)
Fees: Elevator 12€/on foot 7€

Leonardo Da Vinci museum

Great painters such as Michelangelo, Raphael and Leonardo were unique and there is therefore no point in trying to compare them in order to establish which was the greatest. All gifted painters endeavour to attain a perfect pictorial representation of their ideas, but are limited by the heaviness of their manual skills and by the materials used. Leonardo da Vinci, and he alone, surpassed all other painters from this point of view. Throughout his life he jotted down his ideas and his advice on how to be a good painter, in notes and drawings on sheets of paper, subsequently collected in the “Treatise on Painting”.

Theater museum of Scala

The story of the Museo Teatrale alla Scala started in 1911, when Duke Uberto Visconti di Modrone, the composer and librettist Arrigo Boito, the correspondent of Il Secolo Mr Borsa, director of the Pinacoteca di Brera gathered around a table of the Teatro alla Scala. The Museo Teatrale alla Scala (La Scala Theatre Museum) is accessible from the theatre's foyer and a part of the house. It contains a collection of paintings, drafts, statues, costumes, and other documents regarding La Scala's and opera history in general. La Scala also hosts the Accademia d'Arti e Mestieri dello Spettacolo (Academy for the Performing Arts). Its goal is to train a new generation of young musicians, technical staff, and dancers (at the Scuola di Ballo del Teatro alla Scala, one of the Academy's divisions).

Sforza Castle

Castello Sforzesco (Sforza Castle) is a castle in Milan that used to be the residence of the Duchy of Milan and one of the biggest citadels in Europe. It now houses several of the city's museums and art collections. The original construction on the site began in the 14th century. In 1450, Francesco Sforza began the reconstruction of the castle. A number of the rooms originally had elaborate internal decoration - the best known of these being the Sala Delle Asse, which contains ceiling paintings by Leonardo da Vinci.

Italian cuisine has developed through centuries of social and political changes, with roots as far back as the 4th century BCE. Italian cuisine in itself takes heavy influences, including Etruscan, ancient Greek, ancient Roman, Byzantine, and Jewish. Significant changes occurred with the discovery of the New World with the introduction of items such as potatoes, tomatoes, bell peppers and maize, now central to the cuisine but not introduced in quantity until the 18th century. Italian cuisine is noted for its regional diversity, abundance of difference in taste, and is known to be one of the most popular in the world, with influences abroad. Italian cuisine is characterized by its extreme simplicity, with many dishes having only four to eight ingredients. Italian cooks rely chiefly on the quality of the ingredients rather than on elaborate preparation. Ingredients and dishes vary by region. Many dishes that were once regional, however, have proliferated with variations throughout the country. Cheese and wine are a major part of the cuisine, Coffee, specifically espresso, has become important in Italian cuisine.
